Friday 3rd March 2017

Dear parents and carers,

We cannot thank you enough for the effort and support you put into World Book Day yesterday. The atmosphere in school was buzzing and South End's own 'Where's Wally' scene looked amazing.

During the assembly yesterday, the children were informed about the Extreme Reading Challenge that we are launching at SEJ. This entails children and staff reading in wild and weird poses and places, and taking a photograph of it to bring into school. These will all be displayed at the entrance of The Avenue for pupils and visitors to see. Children are invited to bring their photos into school anytime from now and until the deadline of Friday April 21st. Some members of staff were so excited about the opportunity, they have sent in their pictures already!

We look forward to seeing your creative ideas!

Many thanks,

Mrs Lisa Gibbs
